spirit of sacrifice, when he told, as he did, his erring son, in an agony of parental feeling, when delivering the sentence, which even the trying ties of nature could not induce him to withhold, that "he would rather with that hand have closed his eyes in death!" May the Almighty of His infinite mercy, grant that the deeply afflicted father's prayer may indeed be heard, "that my erring child may be brought back to the way of truth and peace, and that for my myself I may have grace to bear and do the holy will of God!"

The following is the sentence of Deposition:

The following is the sentence of Deposition:

To all, everywhere, who are in communion with the One Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church:

Be it known that George Hobart Done, M. D., Deacon of this Diocese, having declared to me, in writing, his renunciation of the Ministry, which he received at my hands from the Lord Jesus Christ, and his design not to officiate in future in any of the offices thereof, intending to submit himself to the schismatical Roman intrusion, is deposed from the Ministry; and I hereby pronounce and declare him to be deposed; In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. Holy Ghost. Amen. Given at Riverside, this fifteenth day of Sep tember, in the year of our Lord, 1855, and in the twenty-third year of my consecration.

G. W. DOANE, D. D. L.L. D. Bishop of New Jersey.

In the presence of MILO MAHAN, D. D., Presbyter MARCUS F. HYDE, A. M., Presbyter.

This sentence was not executed until the provision of the canon, "where the party has acted unadvisedly and hastily," which is preeminently the present case, had been offered, urged and refused. It only remains for me humbly to ask the prayers of the faithful in Christ Jesus that my erring child may be brought back to the way of truth and peace; and for myself, that I may have grace to bear and do the holy will of God.

G. W. DOANE.

Wonderful Juggling We extract the following from an article in the Crayon, descriptive of travels in British India. The scene of the occurrence is laid in Madras:

The scene of the occurrence is laid in Madras:

But the most wonderful performance that we saw this morning, was a feat of pure juggling, of which I have never been able to find any solution.

One of the men came forward upon the gravelled and hard trodden avenue, leading with him a woman. He made her kneel down, tied her arms behind her, and blindfolded her eyes. Then bringing a great bag net made with open meshes of rope, he put it over the woman, and laced up the mouth, fastening it with knotted intertwining cords in such a way that it seemed an tertwining cords in such a way that it seemed an impossibility for her to extricate herself from it. impossibility for her to extricate herself from it.

The man then took a closely-woven wicker basket that narrowed toward the top, lifted the woman in the net from the ground, though it was not without the exertion of some force that he could crowd her through the narrow mouth. Having succeeded in getting her into the basket, in which, from its small size she was necessarily in a most cramped position, he put the cover up-on it, and threw over it a wide strip of cotton cloth, hiding it completely. In a moment, plac-ing his hand under the cloth, he drew out his net quite untied and disentangled. He then took a long, straight, sharp sword, muttered some words ed off and threw aside the covering, and plunged the sword suddenly into the basket.

Prepared, as in some degree we were for this, and knowing that it was only a deception, it was yet impossible to see it without a cold creeping of horror. The quiet and energy with which he re-peated his strokes, driving the sword through and through the basket, while the other jugglers looked on, apparently as much interested as our-selves, were very dramatic and effective. Stop-ping after he had riddled the basket, he again scattered dust upon its top, lifted the lid, took up the basket from the ground; showed it to us empty, and threw it away. At the same moment we saw the woman approaching us from a clump of trees at a distance of at least fifty or sixty feet

Throughout the whole of this inexplicable feat, the old man and woman were quite removed from the rest of their party. The basket stood by itself on the hard earth, and so much beneath the verandah on which we were sitting, that we could easily see all around it. By what trick our watchful eyes were closed, or by what means the woman invisibly escaped, was an entire mystery, and remains unsolved. The feat is not a very uncommon one, but no one who has seen it eve gave me a clue to the manner in which it was

A Bir or Advice.-Have you enemies? Go straight on and don't mind them. If they get in your way walk round them, regardless of their spite. A man who has no enemies is seldom good for anything—he is made of that material which is so easily worked that every one has a hand in it. is so easily worked that every one has a hand in it. A sterling character—one who thinks for himself, and speaks what he thinks, is always to have enemies. They are as necessary to him as fresh air; they keep him alive and active. A celebrated character used to remark: "They are sparks which, if you do not blow out, will go out of themselves." Let this be your feeling, while endeavoring to live down the scandal of those who are bitter against you. If you stop to dispute, you do but as they desire, and open the way for more abuse. Let the fellows talk—there will be reaction, if you but perform your duty, and hundreds who were alienated from you, will flock to you and acknowledge their error.

DEATH OF A VETERAN.—George Heep died at Olney, Ill., on the 17th instant, aged 95. He joined the frigate Constitution, under Commodore Truxton, was in the two celebrated sea-fights in 1787, off the West India Islands, with "La Vengeance" and "La Insurgent," French frigates—in both of which he stuck to his brilliant old commander. He was also in the war with JOHN PAUL JONES .- Judge Black, of Penn-Desistion of a Son by the Bishop of New Jersey—Painful Case.

Or Home Church intelligence this week contains the publication of a document which mustinged have wrung the heart of him whose signated in the it bears—the Sentence of Deposition from the Ministry by the Bishop of New Jersey of his orn son, George Hobart Doane, who was ordained to the Diaconate only about six months ago. It is, in all respects, a most distressing case. The prevision to Romanism which has called forth his sentence appears to have been the work of int a few hours of impulsive declension from the ath of sound Scriptural and Catholic truth. We are been made acquainted with all the circumstances of the painful occurrence; and the only onclusion we can arrive at is, that it is a manisestation of approaching insanity, an incipient symtom of a mental disorder of which the unhappy gentleman has, it is well known, maternally, the hereditary taint. Not only is the act itself that of a morbidly excited mind, but it has been committed in a manner which stamps it as one of mental aberration. It would be consolatory could we think, that there may be no need to parade before an unsympathizing world the private details of so afflictive an occurrence. For our part, however, we shall not unnecessarily draw aside the veil which it is on several accounts to be desired should protect the privacies of so painful a case.

The conduct of the Bishop himself, under some conception of the touching reality of his spirit of sacrifice, when he told, as he did, his spirit of sacrifice, when he told, as he did, his spirit of sacrifice, when he told, as he did, his spirit of sacrifice, when he told, as he did, his spirit of sacrifice, when he told, as he did, his spirit of sacrifice, when he told, as he did, his priving the sentence, which even the trying and rye for horses, We think his plan of raising and rye for horses, We think his plan of raising and rye for horses, We think his plan of raising and rye for horses, We think his plan of raising and rye for horses, sylvania, made a public speech, a short time since, in which he thus alluded to one whom A Fraternal Testimonial.—During the past maming here, that the first ship of war which sailed from our shores—the Alfred—left Walnut street wharf, Philadelphia, in February, 1776—I mean, the first ship over which floated an American flag. "I had," says he, "a conversation with a man lately, who was an experienced farmer, having farmed both in this State (N. Y.) and Ohio, and his manner of raising horse feed was this: I take about 24 bushels of oats, and mix them with one bushel of rye, and sow this amount to the acre. The rye will support the oats in case of a heavy growth, and prevent lodging. In this manner I have raised sixty, seventy, and even eighty bushels per acre." The soil must have been very strong to do that, but the mixture is about in the right proportion.

How to Mend a Chain Pump.—If the chain parts, it is difficult getting one end over the lower pulley and up to the other side unless you take up the pump to do it.

Take a strong string of sufficient length to reach from the bottom of the lower pulley to the surface of the water in the well; tie a cork to one and of it and tie the other to the chain.

surface of the water in the well; tie a cork to one end of it and tie the other to the chain. Then winding the string round the cork, put it into the tube, and let the chain follow it down. As soon as it gets down under the pulley, the cork will rise to the top of the water in the well, from which it may be hooked up. The chain will be hauled up by the string, and the two ends may be fastened together in the usual way.

Portuguese Emigrants in Illinois. A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, rriting from Springfield, Ill., gives the following of the Portuguese emigrants in that section: In a short ramble on the outskirts of this city last evening, I was struck with the large number of small, neat and comfortably appearing cottage houses, in several clusters. They were the dwellings of the Portuguese emigrants. You will recollect that, five years since, some three hundred and fifty Portuguese emigrants—originally from Madeira, later from Trinidad—reached this city, under the care of the Presbyterian Mission Society of New York.

Many of them had been rich, and were exiles from Madeira on account of their religious (Protestant) opinions. They had been reduced to poverty—were compelled to emigrate to the British island of Trinidad—there, in suffering, applied to their Christian friends in New York—were brought thither, and afterwards sent to this city. A great portion of them remained here, some went to Jacksonville and others to Waverly. They were without means, and were sustained for some time by the kindly assistance of our citizens, until they had, to some extent, learned our habits, and were enabled to support themselves by their in-dustry; and they never refused honorable and laborious employments.

These Portuguese are essentially a different race from Germans, Irish, Scotch or Americans. They are very industrious, very prudent, making a five cent piece go as far as possible in the procurement of the necessaries of life. We never see them at the police court. Crime is not charged upon them. They are unobtrusive in their manners, strict in a highly prosperous people.

Most of those with families now own lots and Most of those with families how own lots and houses. They have built, also, a very respectable church. They occasionally make remittances to their distressed friends yet remaining upon the Island of Madeira. Indeed, they are a prosperous people, and show what can be done here by a virtous class of laborers, who are willing to labor, indulge in no idleness, are prudent, and use all the savings that they can possibly make to secure them the comforts of "homesteads."

The Portuguese yet remain a distinct people.

The Portuguese yet remain a distinct people. The old ones, unable to speak our language, will keep up this distinction while they live. Gradually, and at a distant day, they will be mixed ong us-absorbed in our population.

Wild Fruits in Australia.

"Another natural fact regarding this colony is its almost total absence of wild fruits. There is scarcely a nut, berry, or wild fruit of any kind.

Many people who have been in America express their surprise at the difference in this respect between the two countries. There you will find many rich berries and abundance of nuts (hickory-nuts and others) in the woods, as well as wild Punctuation Puzzle.

The following paragraph, extracted from the Portland Transcript, is a capital illustration of the importance of punctuation. There are two ways of pointing it, one of which makes the individual in question a monster of wickedness, while the other converts him into a model Christian. Let our readers exercise their ingenuity on the problem and see whether they can discover its two-fold solution:

In the woods, as well as wild grapes, as well as wild grapes. Here you literally find nothing from one end of the colony to the other, except a red-fruited bramble, very inferior to our good old blackberry. No apples, no plums, even poor as crabs or sloes. There is a species of cranberry, the fruit of which grows under the plant, but this is extremely rare; and there is a fruit called the quandong, which grows on the Murray, which as a large stone and would seem to resemble a plum. Edible roots are as few. In fact, except a very rare sort of fungus, growing in the ground, called native bread, which the natives roast and eat, and the swell as wild grapes. When the flower expands fully we are not to expect rain for several hours; should it continue in that state, no rain will disturb the summer's day. When it half conceals its miniature flower, the day is generally showery; but if it entirely shuts up, or veils the white flower with its green mantle, let the traveller put on his great coat. The different species of Trefoil always contract their leaves at the approach of a storm; so certainly does this take place, that of a storm; so certainly does this take place, that these plants acquired the name of the husband-man's barometer. The tulip, and several of the compound yellow flowers, all close before rain. There is a species of wood sorrel which doubles its leaves before storms. The Bauhinia or mountain ebony, capia, and sensitive plants, observe the same habits.

WHITE MOUNTAINS CAPPED WITH SNOW.—We learn from Mr. Hobbs, conductor of inward train that on Thursday the weather was very cold and that on Thursday the weather was very cold and heavy snow squalls prevailed among the mountains the day and night before, and that the summits of Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Moriah, and Carter were completely capped with snow. In consequence of the great cold the Tip-Top and Summit Houses were evacuated and closed up for the season. The Glen House is still open. The foliage on the mountains is beginning to take its autumnal hue, preparatory to the great annual display next month. The most attractive annual display next month. Just previous to the separation of the representatives, the body having adjourned, several gentlemen constituted themselves a committee, and, in less than half an hour, collected from their brethern of that order-fellow-representatives-one hundred and six dollars, with which they purchased a watch and chain. Inviting the brother who had been robbed into the ladies' parlor of Barnum's hotel, one of the brethren immediately advanced and presented him with those articles. It took him by surprise he having had no previous intimation of the design. He responded, in terms of gratitude, to the brief speech of the organ of the Brotherhood; and every one present was highly gratified with the proceedings, which beautifully exemplified the principles which hold the two hundred thousand Odd Fellows throughout the United States in fra ternal bonds.

The Federal Constitution.-The oration of the Hon. R. H. Gillet, delivered at the Smithsonian Institution, on the 17th instant, on the occasion of the celebration of the anniversary of the adoption of the United States Constitution, has been published. It abounds in patriotic and bealthful sentiments, concluding as follows:

"The duty of the friends of the constitution and Union is a plain and natural one. It is simply to adhere to both, through good and through evil report, eschewing every scheme and design to divert their attention from these noble and patriotic objects, relying upon the purity and patriotism of their own motives, and trusting to an All-wise Providence for the result. "Let us remember that Truth, crushed to earth, will rise again-

The eternal years of God are hers; But Erro, wounded, writhes in pain, And dies amid his worshippers."

Juvenile Generosity.-- A German boy, not over thirteen years of age, contributed seven half-dimes, the other day, in Philadelphia, for the Portsmouth and Norfolk sufferers. He refused to give his name, saying that it would do no good to know it. His countenance glowed with delight at the acceptance of his gift.

IJ Sick Headache Remedy.—A remedy for the sick headache, which has been recently offered to the public, is attracting great attention, not only by reason of the very satisfactory testimonials to its efficacy which have been volunteered by many who have been benefited by it, but also because there are so great a number of people who are af-flicted with the distressing complaint, for which no medicine has before been made public. Dr. Eastman who discovered the efficacy of his "remedy," is a physician in this city, in high standing, with a large practice. He is a physician in whom great confidence is placed; and we do not wonder that his remedy for a very common disease, which has been so long needed, has attracted the attention of all sufferers from headache who have heard of it. CCOTT'S WEEKLY PAPER .-- The publisher of this large and popular family journa-offers for the coming year (1854) a combination of literary attractions heretofore unattemped by any of the Philadelphia weeklies. Among the new of the Philadelphia weeklies. Among the new features will be a new and brilliant series of original romances by George Lippard, entitled Legends of the Last Century. All who have read Mr. Lippard's celebrated "Legends of the American Revo lution," published for fifty-six consecutive weeks in the "Saturday Courier," will find these pictures of French and American history endowed with all the power and brilliancy of his previous productions. The first of a series of original novellettes called Morris Hartley, or the Knights of the Mystic called Morris Hartley, or the Knights of the Mystic Valley, by Harrison W. Ainsworth, is about to be commenced. It will be handsomely illustrated by twelve fine engravings, and its startling incidents cannot fail to elicit undivided praise. Emmerson Bennett, the distinguished novelist, and author of Viola, etc., etc., is also engaged to furnish a brilliant novellette to follow the above. THE next session of this Institution will commence on Monday, the 3d of September,
The Preparatory Department and Collegiate course are both conducted by able and experienced Professors, who devote themselves to the moral and intellectual advancement of those confided to their care. A large and spacious building has just been completed to be used exclusively for the accommodation of the younger students. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, classrooms, &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the other students, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes and preside over their studies. A complete separation will thus be effected between the younger and older students, the advantages of which must be apparent to all those who have the least experience in the education of youth. ENGLISH AND FRENCH BOARDING TO OFFICERS, SOLDIERS, SEAMEN, &c., OF ALL WARS, THEIR WIDOWS AND MINOR CHILDREN.

S. M. KNIGHT, Attorney for Government Claimants,

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
CONTINUES to give prompt and personal attention to the prosecution of Claims of every description against the General Government, and particularly to those before the Trensury Department, Pension and Bounty Land Bureaus, Patent and General Land Offices, and Board of Claims.

An experience of years, and a familiarity with the means of obtaining the sarliest and most favorable action on Claims, with his facilities for the dispatch of business, justify him in assuring his dispatch of business, justify him in assuring his Correspondents, Claimants, and the public generally, that interests intrusted to his keeping will not be neglected.

Pension, Bounty Land, Patent, and Public Land Laws. He has nearly ready for gratuitous distribution among his business Correspondents, (and those who may become such,) a neat pamphlet containing a synopsis of the existing Pension, Bounty Land, Patent, and Public Land Laws, down to the end of the late Congress, including the Bounty Land Act of 3d March, 1855, under which all who have heretofore received less than 160 acres are now entitled to additional less than 160 acres are now entitled to additional land; said Act grants also 160 acres to all Officers, Non-commissioned Officers, Chaplains, Soldiers, Wagon-masters, Teamsters, and friendly Indians, of the Army, including State Troops, Volunteers, and Militia—and all Officers. Seamen, Ordinary Seamen, Marines, Glerks, and Landsmen, of the Navy, not heretofore provided for, who have served not less than fourteen days (unless in battle) at any period since 1776; and to the widows and minor children of all such persons entitled, and deceased. and deceased.

This pamphlet contains "Forms of Application" more full and complete than any elsewhere to be found; adapted to the wants of every class of Claimants under the Act, with copious decisions and instructions of the Department, and practical suggestions as to the course to be pursued in sus-pended or rejected cases.

Parties not wishing to avail themselves of the facilities afforded by this office in securing prompt and personal superintendence of their claims at the Departments, can obtain copies of the above pamphlet by remitting thirty cents in postage

Inducements to Correspondents. Correspondents who prepare and forward cases for management by this Agency will be dealt with liberally; supplied with all necessary blanks gratis, and kept constantly advised of the changes that from time to time occur in the execution of the law. It is within the subscriber's power to direct his Correspondents to the locality of very many persons entitled under the late Act; and having obtained several thousand Land Warrants under former laws, he is in possession of data that will materially assist in securing additional bonnty.
